CHAPTER XIV ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL PROGRESS STEPS TAKEN TO INCREASE PROSPERITY AND REVENUE Bascos policy. The energetic and industrious Jose Basco y Vargas may be placed among the most progressive of the governors of the Philippines. During his rule of about nine years, which began in 1778, he set on foot many new projects for the development of the country. It was his policy to make the Archipelago self-supporting financially. Up to this time a part of the expenses of the government of the Islands had been paid from the treasury of Mexico. To increase the Philippine revenue, Governor Basco tried to improve agriculture, commerce, and other industries. He drew up a general economic plan. In this plan he encouraged the propagation of silkworms and mulberry trees, the planting of cotton and of such spices as cloves, cinnamon, pepper, and nutmegs. He encouraged mining, the manufacture of textiles and porcelain, and the invention of useful articles. He offered rewards to any persons who should excel in these activities. He improved the schools also, and aided in spreading knowledge and in promoting the liberal arts and sciences. The Economic Society of Friends of the Country. One of the progressive things that Governor Basco did was to establish the Economic Society of Friends of the Country. In August, 1780, he received a royal decree from Spain ordering him to form an association of selected persons capable of producing useful ...
