

Freedom of Choice: Vouchers in American Education (Praeger Series on American Political Cultures)

This book reveals that, far from being the result of a groundswell of support for parental choice in American education, the origins of school vouchers are seated in identity politics, religious schooling, and educational entrepreneurship. Case studies describe, explain, and compare the origins of school vouchers in four states: Louisiana, New Hampshire, Ohio, and Wisconsin Interviews with key participants in the debates over school vouchers, including Christopher Jencks and the late Milton Friedman Eight tables and graphs detail demographic and educational changes in New Orleans, Milwaukee, and Cleveland Four maps show the locations of voucher schools and programs in New Orleans, New Hampshire, Milwaukee, and Cleveland Photographs of student and parent supporters of school vouchers A bibliography of primary and secondary sources in urban history, history of education, and educational policy studies
