

The Road to Muckle Flugga: Great drives in five continents

Phil Llewellyn is an award-winning writer whose adventures have enthralled readers of leading magazines and newspapers worldwide. His two million motoring miles - in everything from modern and classic cars to powerful American trucks - have taken him to wild places like Afghanistan, China, Tobago, Sudan, Alaska and Borneo. He has been to the end of the world's southernmost road in Tierra del Fuego and, of course, to Muckle Flugga, the northernmost point of the British Isles, arriving there on the longest day of the year. Here he chronicles some of the most exciting journeys.
