

Children of the Troubles: Our Lives in the Crossfire of Northern Ireland

In this remarkable second book in the Children of Conflict series, Laurel Holliday presents a powerful collection of young peoples memories of growing up in the midst of the violence in Northern Ireland known as The Troubles. All my life I have been afraid. When it would get dark I would lie in bed and be frightened to move in case men would be outside who were going to smash the doors in with a sledge hammer and then shoot whoever is in the house as they have done before. -- Bridie Murphy, age twelve More than sixty Catholic and Protestant children, teenagers, and adults chronicle their coming-of-age experiences in the war zone, from bomb-devastated Belfast to the terrorist-ridden countryside. It was like my head exploded. Its an experience you cant really understand -- getting shot in the head -- unless its happened to you. -- Stephen Robinson, wounded while walking home from secondary school For the first time in thirty years there is some hope for an end to the murders and bombings that have wounded more than 40,000. But the ravages of war remain indelibly etched on the minds and souls of the generation known as children of The Troubles.
