

TEN THESES ON ACCOMPANIMENT OF DYING AS ACCOMPANIMENT TO LIVING - YES TO PALLIATIVE CARE

Dying can be learned and experienced. This can only happen within societies which show solidarity, however. A human being who has encountered death will become both an experienced and a mortal person. From this point of view, mortality is human and accompaniment of the dying would be an anthropological calling which concerns itself in practice with the question What should I do for my fellow human being?
