

Of Human Soil

What is life? It is the flash of a firefly in the night. It is the little shadow which runs across the grass and loses itself in the sunset.--Crowfoot Meet Hunter Ironhorse, a born warrior seeking peace. Hunter is half-white, half-native American...and 100% bewildered. Follow this combat hardened veteran, turned writer, struggling with the demons of his past, to take you on a journalistic tour through the destruction of his Indian ancestors, his Hispanic and Black friends, from the killing fields of Vietnam, to the psycho wards of the Veterans hospital. From this dark passage through the fog of a drug dulled mind, he glimpses what really happened in another killing field...the plowed over fields of his past. He must face the hypocrisy, the bigotry, and put to rest the ghosts of unsolved killings that blight his blood, and haunts his dreams. Somehow, he must find a way to come to terms with his estranged family, and forgive them...and himself, if he is to ever have peace. He has survived the horrors of war, the brink of madness, but...can he survive what his probing may unearth...from the layers OF HUMAN SOIL?
