

In Foreign Lands, Some Sketches of Travel in Asia, Africa, and Oceania (Classic Reprint)

The Himalaya Mountains, we all know, run from northwest to south-east, in great parallel folds; between the, first two of these folds lies the valley of Kashmir. The Pir Panjal range divides it from the Punjab, and the traveller approaching from the south comes into touch with Kashmir when he gets past Lahore and ~sees the snowy summits of the Pir Panjal rising across the plain. It is not easy to cross them, certainly not in A pril, and the general plan nowadays is to go north as far as Rawal Pindi, and enter Kashmir by the Jhelum Valley. The road is long and tedioustwo hundred miles long and the scenery most of the way is dull. There is some interest in the cuttings, which are the deepest on any road in I ndia. The valley is extremely narrow, and the mountains are formed of conglomerate rock, a sort of gravel pudding with large boulders in it. Thus, the side of the road is a wall, sometimes a hundred feet high, with stones large and small sticking out everywhere and threatening to tumble down. This they occasionally do, especially in the spring, when the snow is melting; landslips are also common, bridges disappear, and the early traveller is saved from brooding over the tedium of the way.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgotten Books Classic Reprint Series utilizes the latest technology to regenerate facsimiles of historically important writings.
