

La Araucania, Chile: Through the Eyes of a Gringo: Part Two: Catalysts (La Araucania, Chile: Through the Eyes of a Gringo Book 2)

When author Erik Slagle met his future wife Pamela on a blind date, it was his introduction to Pamelas captivating home country of Chile. Two years later, they made their first trip to her home country as husband and wife. La Araucania, Chile: Through the Eyes of a Gringo is a story of discovering Nerudas thin country: its long history of political turmoil, its heart-stopping natural beauty, its music, and its unique cultural blend of European, Latino, and Native Mapuche influences. Its also the story of two people from opposite ends of the globe finding one another by chance, saying goodbye, and realizing they cannot let go - and of the adventures that can unfold when you move out of your comfort zone and say yes to taking chances that seem crazy if you look too closely. Part Two - Catalysts includes new explorations of Concepcion, Las Termas de Huife, Santiago, and the volcano at Tolhuaca. Set largely at the family farm in Chiles Araucania Region, the second volume of the La Araucania series celebrates a summer Christmas in Chile. Later the author comes to examine his own faith and spirituality when a family member receives a devastating health diagnosis.
