

Women in German Yearbook 5

Articles in this collection discuss feminist theory and deconstruction: West German feminist film criticism; environmentalism and feminism in the GDR: Marieluise Fleibers early dramas; and nineteenth-century women letter-writers. Also included are a sociolinguistic reading of a Middle High German tale, and a bibliography on German social history and women writers. As a serial publication, this Yearbook provides a forum for feminist scholarship on any topic related to women in German literature and culture. This, the only feminist journal devoted to German studies, will be of interest to professors and students of German and/or womens studies, as well as of comparative literature, at the graduate and undergraduate college levels. Co-published with the Coalition of Women in German.
